SECTION 7: ADVANCED READING COMPREHENSIVE TEXT

THE PARADOX OF THE COOPERATIVE COMMUNAL ECO-VILLAGE

In a contemporary world facing unprecedented environmental degradation, global warming, and excessive plastic waste, a group of progressive citizens decided to establish the "Green Horizon Eco-Village." The primary goal of this experimental community is to minimize individual ecological footprints by combining cutting-edge smart home technologies with highly cooperative communal living arrangements. All residential structures in the village are compact terraced cottages equipped with digital smart fridges, automatic energy-saving kettles, and advanced greywater recycling systems. The residents believe that if every household utilized smart infrastructure to automatically monitor electricity consumption, global resource demands would plummet dramatically.

However, operating an ecologically sustainable community is not without its ethical and social dilemmas. Living in close quarters means that residents must share a vast array of facilities, including communal kitchens, high-capacity industrial dishwashers, and shared electric vehicles. Recently, internal conflicts have arisen regarding individual behavior and personal responsibility. For instance, some community members have been accused of jumping the queue to use the shared rapid-charging car ports, while others frequently display a relaxed attitude toward household chores, leaving dirty dishes inside the communal dining area or neglecting to unload the washing machines.

Furthermore, a significant ethical debate has emerged regarding the village's strict rules against introducing non-recyclable materials. Last month, a resident discovered that her neighbor was secretly purchasing wrapped products from external supermarkets and dropping litter—specifically plastic packaging—into the local compost bins. This situation presented a severe moral dilemma: should the resident report her neighbor's dishonest behavior to the village council, or should she try to resolve the matter privately? Some community members argue that unless rules are strictly enforced by an official governing body, the cooperative spirit of the entire village will collapse. Others counter that spying on neighbors destroys mutual trust. As the eco-village continues to evolve, it serves as a fascinating case study demonstrating that solving environmental crises requires not only advanced technology but also deep behavioral reform and strong social cohesion.

PART A: TRUE / FALSE / DOESN'T KNOW (T / F / DS)

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Directions: Read the text above carefully. Write T if the statement is True, F if the statement is False, or DS if the text Does Not Say the information.

EXAMPLE:
THE ECO-VILLAGE IS NAMED "GREEN HORIZON."
ANSWER: T

1. Every single residential house inside the Green Horizon Eco-Village is a massive, three-story detached mansion.

2. The smart fridges in the village cottages are capable of ordering groceries online automatically when supplies run low.

3. Residents share certain facilities, such as high-capacity dishwashers and electric transport vehicles.

4. Some individuals have been accused of jumping the queue at the electric vehicle charging stations.

5. The local village council has decided to expel the resident who dropped plastic litter into the compost bins.

6. The neighborhood conflict regarding plastic packaging waste was resolved completely within forty-eight hours.

7. Some members believe that mutual trust among neighbors is ruined if people spy on each other.

8. The eco-village is located in the rural countryside of southern England, far away from major urban centers.

9. The cottages are equipped with automatic energy-saving kettles to minimize power wastage.

10. The text concludes that technology alone is entirely sufficient to solve all modern environmental issues.

PART B: MULTIPLE CHOICE TEXT COMPREHENSION
Directions: Read the text carefully and select the best option (A, B, C, or D) that answers each question.

EXAMPLE:
WHAT IS THE ECO-VILLAGE TRYING TO MINIMIZE?
A) FINANCIAL WEALTH
B) INDIVIDUAL ECOLOGICAL FOOTPRINTS
C) POPULATION SIZE
D) TECHNOLOGY USE
ANSWER: B

1. Which environmental issues are explicitly mentioned in the first paragraph of the text?

A) Air pollution, deforesting programs, and overfishing.
