Street food has long been part of everyday life in Vietnam. But for many _____ visitors, trying food from a _____ roadside stall is not always an easy first step. Of course, behind the crowds and the plastic stools and the sizzling grills is an _____ that is very different from what they know. And that is where our _____ begins. Evening rush hour at a crowded street side eatery. The setting alone feels _____. The noise and the way food is _____ just meters from traffic. There are _____ that you have to add, like _____ and sauces. So many different things, and you don't know what to _____ to it. I think the oysters and the _____ and the snails and everything, we are not _____ to that in Germany.
