Choose the correct form of the verb to fill the gap.

As a US citizen, Virginia could ▾ France legally. For this reason, a cover story was ▾ that would ▾ her presence in the country. She was to ▾ as a French-speaking American journalist ▾ back reports of the war in France to her superiors at the New York Post. As part of her cover, Virginia had ▾ for and been ▾ a job at the newspaper, but they ▾ not aware that she ▾ also a spy.

In August 1941, a boat ▾ Virginia to Lisbon in Portugal, and from there she ▾ a train to Vichy in France. Vichy and the southern half of France had not yet been ▾ by the German army.

LIVEWORKSHEETS