Rabbits are often (scared). They are scared even of their own shadows. They did not like to be scared so often, and tried to kill themselves. But while they were talking about how to die, they heard a (strange) (noise) and ran. They passed a large pond and saw some frogs near a long river. The scared frogs jumped into the river.

"Look," cried a rabbit, "we don't have to be scared, the frogs are (afraid) of us!"
