Hamburger Heaven opened just three weeks ago. Its owner, Greta Bouchet, is also the owner of the very popular Greta's Garden. The two restaurants couldn't be more different. Greta's Garden serves healthy, vegetarian meals in a small but beautiful setting filled with flowers and live birds. The mood is calm and quiet. Hamburger Heaven is the exact opposite. The menu is amazing, but not very healthy and certainly not vegetarian. There are 25 different kinds of hamburgers and 6 kinds of French fries, along with onion rings and other high-fat foods. And the surroundings are anything but calm and quiet. The walls are purple and pink, and the music is loud. The surroundings really wake you up! One thing, however, that these two restaurants have in common—they both serve delicious food. So, if you're feeling healthy and are looking for peace and quiet, try Greta's Garden. But when you're really hungry and want a rousing good time, go to Hamburger Heaven.
