

The Daffodil Hunt

Instructions: Choose the right Chinese meaning for the names for ACTIVITIES in the drop-down boxes. Then search for drop-down boxes next to daffodils. If you find the drop-down box for a daffodil, choose 'shuixianhua' ('Daffodil' in Chinese) to earn your points. After you have chosen all the Chinese for all the Activities in English and found all the daffodils hidden, click 'Finished'. Then you can 'check your answer' or 'email the answer to your teacher'. Have fun and good luck! My email address is : grissetto@diocesan.school.nz

The collage features several activity-related images with labels in blue boxes:

- badminton: A green board with colorful paper daffodils.
- taichi: A person performing a Tai Chi movement.
- swimming: A person in a red swimsuit.
- dancing: A person in a white dress performing a dance.
- kongfu: A red Kongfu dummy.
- singing: A person holding a red fan.
- Playing chess: A person playing a board game.

Other elements include:

- A 'Certificate of Completion' for a quiz about Chinese members.
- A 'Wode jijubao 我的急救包 (My Emergency Kit)' label.
- A box asking: "How many bouquets of daffodils are there?"
- A map of China and a 'Name the Land members in Chinese' worksheet.
- A 'Certificate of Completion' for a quiz about Chinese members.
- A 'Wode jijubao 我的急救包 (My Emergency Kit)' label.