Prepositions

Fill in the gaps with suitable prepositions

1. Environmental, social and economic problems often stem _____ short-term thinking in policy and business decisions.
2. These large-scale restoration initiatives will resonate _____ the public who are increasingly concerned about the state of the environment.
3. Rigorous preparation and training are prerequisites _____ governments to effectively implement policies around sustainability.
4. We hope our joint efforts will translate _____ concrete progress on protecting our shared home.
5. Some experts argue positive changes will only truly materialise _____ multiple generations through systemic cultural and economic transformation.
6. A just transition that considers all perspectives regardless _____ social or economic status will be critical for equitable policy design.
7. Nations and leaders should aim to capitalise _____ opportunities for new industries and employment associated with the green economy.
8. Our organisation embarks _____ the implementation of ambitious reforms across the board.
9. Those with disabilities should not be precluded _____ equal participation in rebuilding our societies in an environmentally sustainable way.
10. bridging the gap _____ the goals of economic growth and environmental protection is one of the key political challenges of our era.
11. That major international deal was branded _____ a turning point that raised climate ambition, accountability and cooperation to a new level.

LIVEWORKSHEETS