Regent Street

Regent Street is near Piccadilly Circus.
Here you can find Hamley's, a fantastic toy shop! There are five floors in the shop and there's also a Lego section and a bear factory where you can ask for and make your special personalized teddy bear!

Covent Garden

Covent Garden is another place where you can buy unusual and interesting things, and you can watch street artists performing their shows or listen to live music. This was the old flower and fruit market but now it is full of shops and restaurants.

Portobello Road

Take the Tube and get off at Notting Hill Gate. You can find hundreds of stalls and shops along Portobello Road on Saturday mornings. They sell lots of different things!
Portobello Road is famous for its antiques shops and stalls, but you can also find second-hand objects.

Oxford Street

In Oxford Street there are hundreds of shops and department-stores. One of the most famous is called Selfridges.
This street is 2 miles long and it's full of people especially on Saturday mornings.

Camden Lock

Do you like outdoor markets?
Then go to Camden Lock, where you can find trendy fashion, music and the flea market. This market is full of second-hand clothes and CDs, oriental and Gothic items.

Harrods

Knightsbridge is a very expensive shopping area where you can find a very famous department store: Harrods.
Harrods is a luxurious store where you cannot get in if you have a rucksack with you!
The Food Hall has beautiful decorations and wonderful cakes.
