The teacher calls the police to report the bag. The students stand by, wondering where it came from and what should be done next.

Two men sit across from each other on a train. One man has a large brown bag above him on the luggage rack. After a while, he nervously gets up and leaves without the bag.

A group of students and their teacher are cleaning up a park when they find the same brown bag. Curious, they open it and discover strange items inside, including money and a passport.

At the police station, an officer examines the bag. He notices the passport and money and starts looking into it, thinking this might be part of a bigger case.
