Young People Doing Good

Many young people these days are taking time out to do good things for their community. We decided to talk to a few of them.

Dennis Parks

I'm going to volunteer at a residential care home this year after school finishes. That's where older people go to live so that trained staff can take care of them. I think it will be hard work, but a lot of fun too. I love talking to older people because they have some really interesting stories.

Tanya Stokes

I have a few things planned for the summer. In the first week, my local canoe club is going to clean up the river through town. Unfortunately, there's a lot of rubbish in there. Also, the sides of the river have become quite overgrown with grass and other plants. I don't know why the local government doesn't do this, but they haven't done it for years. After that, I'm going to stay on a farm with my parents, which will be fun! Then, when I get back, I'm going to do a completely different job. I'm going to work in a charity shop in town.

Pedro Sanchez Chinchilla

I'm going to do what I do every long holiday – I pet-sit! What I mean is that I look after people's pets while they are on holiday. Actually, I do this all year but in the summer I'm really busy because so many people go away. There's quite a lot of different animals, like dogs, cats and fish. But there are some interesting and scary ones too, like snakes and spiders. One year I had to look after a baby fox!
