Visiting the National Museum

Last weekend, our class visited the National Museum in the city center. The building was very big and modern, with high glass windows and a beautiful garden outside.

When we entered the museum, we saw many different sections. The history section had old tools, traditional clothes, and ancient coins. The science section showed models of planets, robots, and inventions. My favorite part was the art gallery. There were many colorful paintings and statues made by famous artists.

We spent about three hours walking around the museum. Everyone took notes and some students drew pictures of their favorite objects. Before leaving, we stopped at the souvenir shop. Many students bought keychains, books, or postcards to remember the trip.

The visit was both fun and educational. We learned a lot about history, science, and art. I think going to museums is a great way to study outside the classroom.
