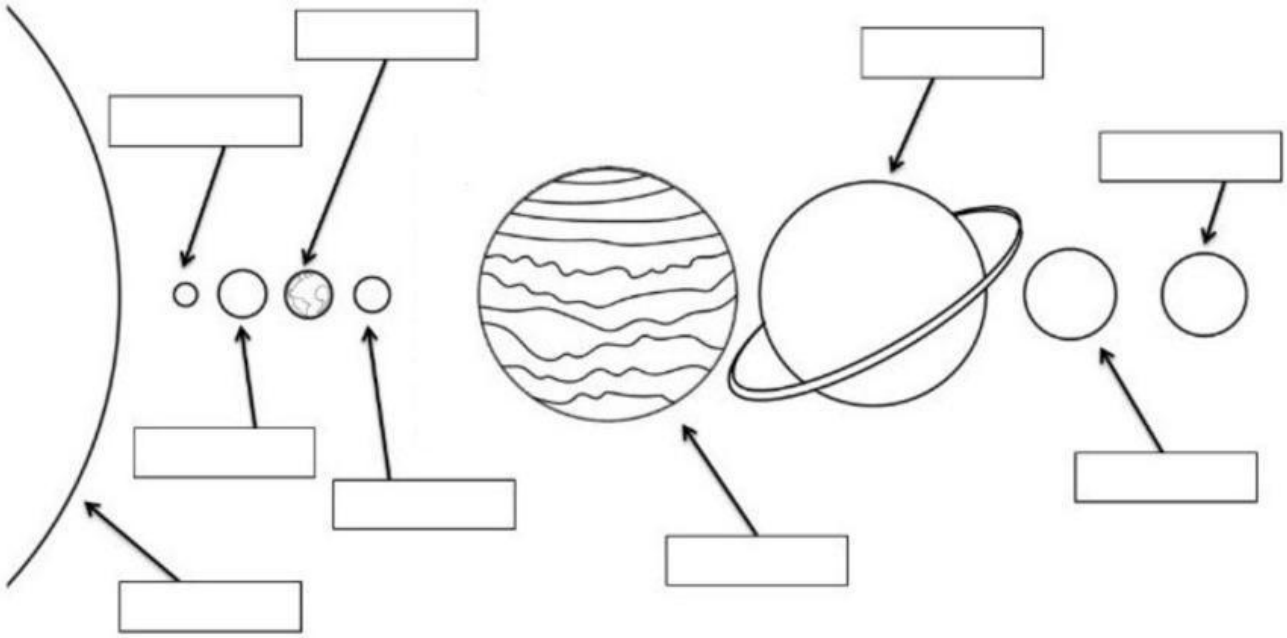
GET LOST AMONGST THE STARS

First, see if you can sort the planets



SATURN URANUS EARTH VENUS NEPTUNE MARS THE SUN JUPITER MERCURY

Alright, now see if you can fill in this fact sheet with the appropriate space-themed words

People often confuse _____ with _____. The former is someone who studies space but doesn't actually go up there, while the latter is someone who explores space by going up there.
Each _____ in our _____ is pretty different. They have their own _____, varying gravity, and some of them can even be seen from _____ with a _____. People commonly use them to look up at the sky and go _____ gazing.
The night sky is also full of _____ which transmit data that we access everyday.
Have you ever visited a _____? It's like a museum for space bodies - a perfect place to get to know all about space without having to own or know how to pilot a _____.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

CONDITIONALS... IN SPACE!

A. Complete the sentences with the correct verbs to create the Zero Conditional.

1. If you _____ (go up) high enough, the sky _____ (become) black.
2. An eclipse _____ (happen) if the Sun, Moon and Earth _____ (be) in the right position.
3. If astronauts _____ (not practice) in zero gravity, they _____ (get) sick when they go up into space.
4. Stars _____ (be) seen in the night sky if the sky _____ (be) clear enough,
5. If a star _____ (be) old enough, it _____ (explode).

B. Fix the mistakes in these First Conditional sentences.

1. I will be the first of my friends to go up into space if I will become an astronaut!
2. Astronomers will discover a new planet if enough time pass.
3. If the sun goed out, the Earth will not last long.
4. If I has enough money, I will goes to a planetarium to learn about space.
5. The International Space Station will crash, if it will not be maintained.

C. Fill in the gaps with your own ideas using Second Conditional.

1. If I ....., I would .....
2. My best friend wouldn't ..... if he/she .....
3. My parents would ..... if they .....
4. If my school ....., all of my friends would .....
5. I wouldn't eat ..... if I knew .....

LIVEWORKSHEETS