People are motivated to work hard for two main reasons (_____). To begin with, some people work extra shifts to increase their income (_____). They feel that by earning more money, they will be able to provide comfort for themselves and their families (_____). Furthermore, newly hired employees work long hours to meet the employer's goals and keep their jobs (_____). They are concerned that if they do not meet the target, their company will replace them with more capable employees (_____).

However, people who work hard are more likely to have issues at work and at home (_____). First, individuals who work long shifts may make many mistakes due to the stress they face (_____). As a result, they might cause great damage to their companies and lose their jobs (_____). Moreover, because of a heavy workload, people may not spend enough time with their families (_____). This can lead to an increase in arguments between partners, causing problems in their relationship. (_____). Besides, according to researchers, a growing number of people are suffering from psychological illnesses (_____), such as stress disorder and anxiety, as a result of working too much (_____).

Supporting idea 2 (Q2)

Supporting details 2 (Q1)

Supporting details 1 (Q2)

Supporting idea 1 (Q2)

Topic sentence (Question 2)

Supporting details 3 (Q2)

Supporting idea 3 (Q2)

Topic sentence (Question 1)

Supporting idea 1 (Q1)

Supporting idea 2 (Q1)

Supporting details 2 (Q2)

Supporting details 1 (Q1)

LIVEWORKSHEETS