Tom heaved a sigh of relief as her packed his bag to go home. He had been training for the upcoming school track and field competition for the past three hours and was exhausted. He could not wait to go home to take a shower and eat his favorite chicken curry.

He was just leaving his classroom when he heard a child wailing. A little boy was surrounded by a group of three bigger boys in the next classroom. The little boy, probably a Primary Three pupil, was trembling with fear and fear and tears were streaming down his cheeks. The bullies shoved his shoulder a couple of times.

He had seen the boys before "Aren't they the ones who were punished by the school principal, Mr. Richard, during assembly?" Tom thought to himself. Tom was furious and thought, "How could they do this to a little boy?"

Without his hesitation, he ran to the general office. Fortunately, Mr. Richard was still working in his office. Tom took Mr. Richard to the classroom just in time to stop the bullies from slapping the poor boy. The bullies were suspended from school from school immediately and their parents were informed.

Mr. Richard commended Tom for his action. Tom just happened to be in the right place, at the right time! The little boy thanked Tom for being his savior.
