At A Gift Shop

Nit likes to visit her friend Lek. Lek's parents have a gift shop in the town. The shop sells a lot of pretty things—silk flowers, silk scarves, and fish mobiles. Foreign tourists often shop at Lek's shop and buy gifts. When a big group of tourists come to the shop, Nit helps Lek and her parents sell things.

Nit enjoys selling things to tourists. At first, she was afraid, but now she is not afraid anymore. She knows that she can sell anything if she knows her numbers in English well. She does not know the English names for all the gifts in the shop, but it doesn't matter because the tourists always point to them with their fingers. So she has learned to count well in English.

Listen to Nit now. She is talking to a tourist.

Nit: Good afternoon, madam. May I help you?

Tourist: (points to some silk roses): Yes, I want these. How much are they?

Nit: 240 baht a dozen.

Tourist: Can I have them for 200 baht?

Nit: I'm sorry, but 240 baht is reasonable. It is only 20 baht each.
We don't make much profit, you know.

Tourist: My friends are waiting for me outside. I must hurry. How about 220 baht?

Nit: All right, madam. You can have them for 220 baht.

Tourist: Can you give me the change for 500 baht?

Nit: Certainly, madam. Here is your change. Thank you very much. Good-bye.

Tourist: Good-bye.

Learn your English numbers well. Maybe they will help you get a good job.
