

Zero Conditional: Facts & General Truths

1. Read the following text.

Today in class, my daughter learned that if you mix yellow and blue, you make green. Then she told me about a science experiment she did, she learned that water melts if you heat it at 100 degrees. She is learning so much! She is growing up so quickly. This morning, I was almost late for work. I don't want to be late for work because my boss told me that if I am late for work again, I instantly lose my job. It was such a stressful day at work, so now I am going to meet my friends at a park and go for a walk. I want to wear perfume, but I can't because if I wear perfume, I have reactions to it and I start sneezing. When I got home from work today, I realized how cold it was, so I turned on the radiator to warm up. But, if I have it on for too long, it costs me too much. So, I only had it on for an hour. Tomorrow, I am going to cut my hair, I want to dye my hair blue, but I once heard that dying your hair damages it. Once, my friends told me that if you dye your hair too much, it falls out.

2. Read the text again and answer the following questions.

A. How many sentences in this paragraph use the Zero Conditional?

_____.

B. What did the daughter learn in class today?

_____.

C. What happens if the woman is late for work?

_____.

D. Why can't the woman wear perfume?

_____.

E. What happens if the woman has the radiator on for too long?

_____.

F. What did the woman's friends told her about dying her hair too much?

_____.