

SONG ACTIVITY

93 MILLION MILES - Jason Mraz

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bcQwIxRcaYs3:48>

|                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                               |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| 93 million miles from the sunPeople get ready, get ready'Cause here it comes, it's a lightA beautiful light, over the horizonInto our eyes Oh, my, my how beautifulOh, my beautiful motherShe told me: Son, in life you're gonnago farIf you do it right, you'll love where youare Just know, wherever you goYou can always / always can comehome 240 Thousand miles from the moonWe've come a long way to belonghereTo share this view of the nightA glorious nightOver the horizon is another bright sky | Oh, my, my how beautifulOh, my irrefutable fatherHe told me, son, _____ it mayseem darkBut the absence of the light is anecessary part Just know,you never are / you're never aloneYou can _____ come back homeYou can _____ come back Every road is a slippery slopeThere always is / is always a hand thatyou can hold on toLooking deeper through the telescopeYou can see that your home's inside ofyou Just know, that wherever you goNo, you're _____ aloneYou will always get back home93 Million miles from the sunPeople get ready, get ready'Cause here it comes, it's a lightA beautiful light, over the horizonInto our eyes. |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|

Miss Leticia