

How does the human body respond to an external stimulus like the smell of pizza?

Sensory receptors at the back of your nose, send signals (electrical impulses) along the nerves to your brain.

The smell information reaches your brain.

When you smell pizza, you receive information through sensory receptors in your nose.

The brain processes it to produce the proper response.

You can now determine the type of food.

Blank boxes for additional text or notes.