Read the passage. Answer the questions.

Calvin and Jada were picking grapes that their parents would sell at the Farmer's Market the next morning.

"It's hot out here. Let's take another break," said Jada.

"We just took a break five minutes ago, replied Calvin. He continued to pick the grapes from each plant. "I think we should keep working and just get this done. If we take too many breaks, it is really going to get hot out here."

Jada shook her head. Too bad! I am going to sit under the shade of that tree over there."

Five minutes later, Calvin glanced at his sister. Her basket was nearly empty because he had been feasting on the few grapes that he had already picked. He shook his head in disgust. She is going to regret this in an hour when I have finished my rows and she is still out here working in the heat.
