My name is Nolan. I live in Reykjavik, which is the capital city of Iceland and the most northerly capital city in the world. It is in Europe. It has a population of 178,000 people. Reykjavik is a cold place to live, with winter temperature of -1 °C and summer temperatures of around 11 °C, so if you come and visit remember to bring warm clothes to wear. The weather is cold, although you can keep warm by visiting one of the many famous swimming pools, or Hot Pots. Here you can enjoy the natural hot water that comes up from the centre of the earth with temperature of 44°C. A Hot Pot bath can make lazy. However, an active alternative is to go for a walk or a horse ride. Also, we have many festivals like Bun Day and Bursting Day when everyone eats and drinks as much as he can.
