PUT YOUR WELLIES ON!

Do you want to keep your feet warm in the autumn and winter months and look trendy? Buy a pair of 'Wellies' to keep you dry and to look nice when it starts raining and snowing.

Wellies are boots made from rubber and they're waterproof, which means that they don't let water in. They are also known as 'rubber boots' and 'Wellington boots'. They're usually up to the knee, but there are also Wellies that are lower than that. You can find them in any colour you can imagine and with lots of different patterns and pictures. A very popular pattern is with the Union Jack (the flag of Great Britain).

Today, people wear these boots in many countries around the world, but they appeared in the UK a long time ago. The Duke of Wellington asked his shoemaker in London to change his boots and make them shorter (up to the knee). This was around 1815 and that's why today they are called 'Wellies' after the Duke. They are very comfortable and you can wear them with jeans or trousers, skirts or dresses. Have you got a pair of Wellies?
