Name: _____

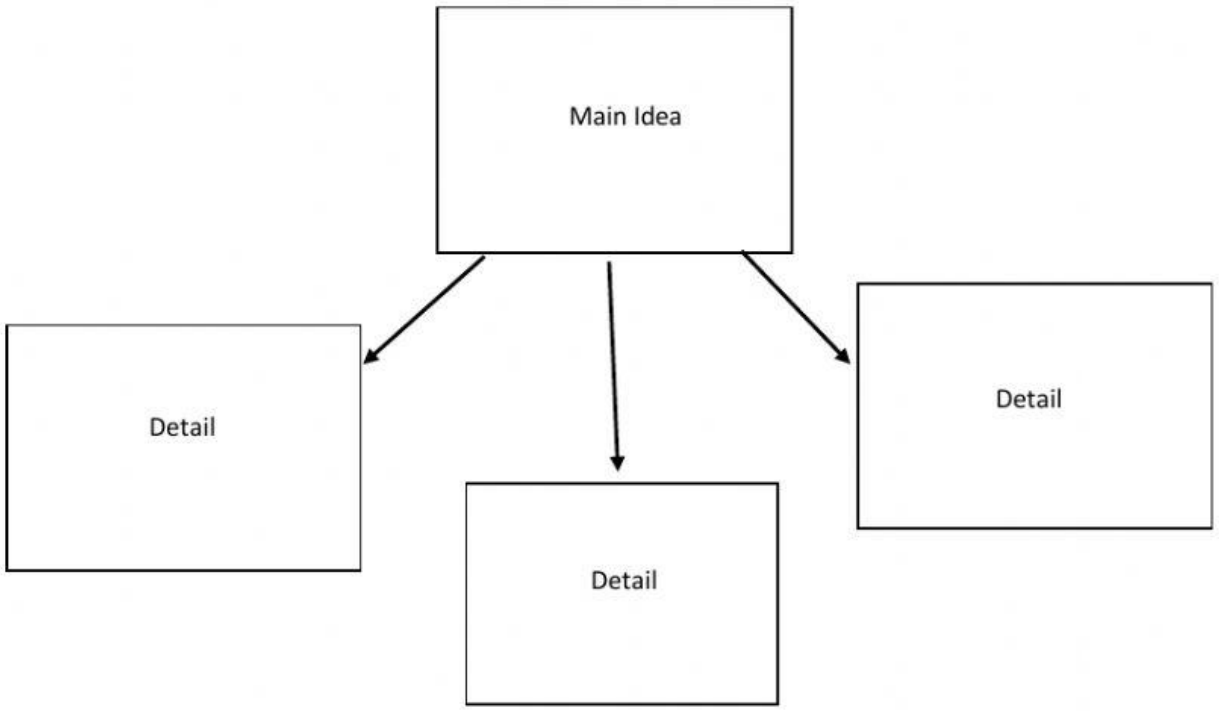

Main Idea and Details

Read the story.

There are many different types of families in our community today. Nuclear families are made up of both parents and their children. Single parent families are made up of one parent and his or her children. Extended families include grandparents and other relatives who live together. People who are not related can make up foster families. The members of a family should care about each other.

Click and drag the sentences in the box into the chart below to show the main idea and the details.

Nuclear families are made up of both parents and their children.	People who are not related make up foster families.	There are many different types of families in our communities.	Extended families are made up of parents, children and other relatives who live together.

LIVEWORKSHEETS