The Coldest City on Earth

There are lots of extreme places in the world, but if you like warm temperatures, you had better (56)_____ Yakutsk, the coldest city in the world. Temperatures in this remote part of Russia can (57)_____ minus forty degrees Celsius!

(58)_____ first, Yakutsk was a diamond mining village and it grew to become a city of over 270,000 citizens. These days, it has all the things you would associate with a normal city. However, it is not a normal city and the local people (59)_____ learn to live with the extremely low temperatures. For example, you will never see a Yakuskan, as the locals are called, wearing glasses outside in winter. This is because it is so cold that the metal sticks to the face! You may also see cars which have their engines running non-stop. This is because the engines would risk freezing if they were (60)_____. Fortunately, petrol is very affordable in this part of Russia!

It is obvious that warm clothes are essential in a place like this, but the only suitable material for clothes is fur, which is a natural product from animals. The cost of a fur coat can be twice what people earn in a month, but it is a good (61)_____ which lasts a lifetime.

(62)_____, local people here say that winter is their favourite time of year. This is probably because the summers are extremely hot and only last for a couple of months. As a result, people do not tend to spend money on air conditioning, (63)_____ rooms can get extremely hot and uncomfortable. Also, the area is invaded by millions of mosquitoes (64)_____ this time!

So, if this hasn't put you (65)_____, come and visit Yakutsk. And don't forget, bring lots of warm clothes!
