

The Passive

We use the passive...

- when we don't know the actor (the person who does the action)
- when the object is more important than the actor (we can use "by" the actor in this case)
- when the actor isn't important

This is how we form the passive in the present / past (it's also possible to use the passive form in the perfect and continuous forms!)

Affirmative:

The object	+ the verb "to be"	+ the past participle	(+ by + the actor)
I	am / was	paid	by my mother
You	are / were	built	by the government
She/He/It	is / was	studied	by the Spanish
We	are / were	spoken	by Gaudí
They	are / are	written	by students

For example: The book ("it") is/was written in 1986. It was written by a Spanish author.

Negative:

The object	+ the verb "to be"	+ not (or n't)	+ the past participle	(+ by + the actor)
I	am / was	not n't	paid	by my mother
You	are / were		built	by the government
She/He/It	is / was		studied	by the Spanish
We	are / were		spoken	by Gaudí
They	are / are		written	by students

For example: I wasn't born in France. They were not paid by their company.

Question:

+ the verb "to be"	the object	+ the past participle	(+ by + the actor)
Am / Was	I	paid	by my mother	?
Are / Were	you	built	by the government
Is / Was	she/he/it	studied	by the Spanish
Are / Were	we	spoken	by Gaudí
Are / Are	they	written	by students

For example: Were you born in England? Is Spanish spoken in Japan?
