READING

Read the text below. Number the pictures in the order the events happened.

Bob closed the front door, walked into the living room, and picked up the framed wedding photograph. As he gazed at the happy couple smiling up at him from the picture, he wondered what had gone wrong. He and his wife Sally had got married when they were still at college. After they'd graduated, they'd had their first baby within a year, and the problems started. Sally had wanted to go back to work, but Bob had insisted that she should stay at home and become a housewife. Bob had been furious a year later when she had become a flight attendant and taken off to see the world. He glanced out of the living room window and watched as the taxi drove away. She'd only just arrived home from her last trip, and now, two days later, she was off again. Bob felt so lonely.
