The crow expressed his thoughts to the swan.

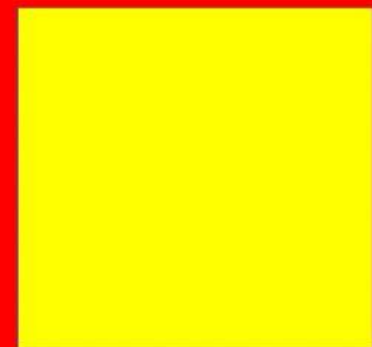

She had all white feathers whereas the crow was black.

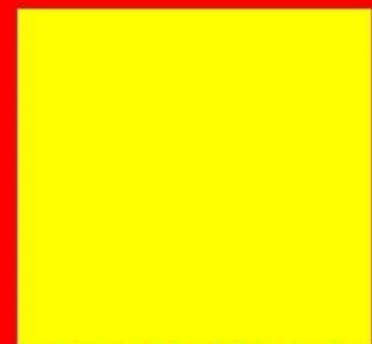

The swan replied that according to her, the parrot is the most beautiful bird as it has two colours & the swan had just one.

Once a crow looked at a swan & thought how beautiful the swan is.

Next, the crow approached the parrot, who simply said that peacock is the most beautiful than him, as it is multicoloured.

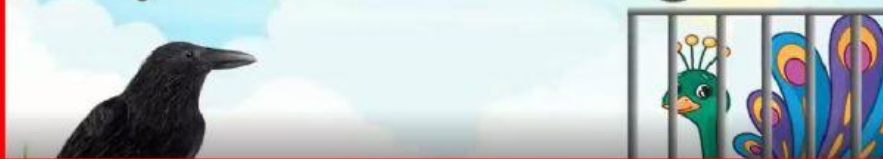

On hearing this, the crow thought how foolish he had been & thanked God for making him the way he was.

"Because of my beauty, I am trapped in this cage & you are free."

"My dear crow, you are the luckiest bird on this planet as you are never caged."

Moral:
Never compare yourself to others. Be happy in what you are & what you have.

When the crow expressed his thoughts to the peacock, the peacock replied,
