THE SPARK OF INVENTION

2014 WIPO GENERAL ASSEMBLY SIDE EVENT

A ground-breaking Times/Qualcomm patent reveals that the world's greatest area of invention and innovation is yet to come.

The Times Innovation Path, a global survey of more than 60,000 patents in 17 markets and emerging markets showed what areas innovators will be hot on in a 20 Year Horizon side event of the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO) 2014 General Assembly.

James Hoggan, Editor at large of TIME magazine, gave a thought-provoking presentation of the path. Bill Miller, Linn, Deputy Director of the London Science Patent and Trademark Office (IPTO), discussed the survey results and presented a range of IP solutions that will be available global innovators and entrepreneurs.

Half of the patents included in the Times/Qualcomm path believe that, in terms of technological advancement, the future will be even longer than the past. According to forecasts, the potential of innovators using intellectual property rights will be crucial to sustainable investments in new ideas, and to ensure that innovation can transform their ideas into products and services.
