Ava: And now it's time for 'What's new?'.
This week we have Ethan Grant, who's 13,
[ ] from Bali in Indonesia.
Hi Ethan.
Ethan: Hi Ava.
Ava: So, Ethan, I [ ].
Could you tell us about it?
Ethan: Yes, it's [ ].
Ava: Is that like homeschooling?
Ethan: OK, well, er basically, yes it is,
but schoo[ ] – it's .... the world.
Ava: Right! Tell us from the [ ].
Ethan: OK. That was two years ago.
My sister, Ruth and I were doing OK at school.
Mum [ ] and Dad loved travelling, so one day our parents said to us
'We're taking you out of school for a year and we're going to [ ]'.
Ruth and I thought it was a great idea.
Ava: A [ ] for your parents!
What did your family and your [ ] think?
Ethan: They all thought mum and dad [ ]!
Ava: So what happened next?
Ethan: Mum and dad [ ].
They [ ] the house and lots of their things.
Then they bought a [ ] and ... we left.
Ava: So what about your schooling?
Ethan: Mum and dad [ ] things each week –
they got [ ] off the internet –
but the big thing about world schooling is that travelling is an [ ] in itself.
So many subjects [ ] when you are in a new place.
You learn about the [ ] of a place,
its [ ], its language or languages
and you need [ ] when you are using the [ ].
Ruth and I have been to lots of countries,
met so many [ ] people and learnt so much about the world.
Ava: How long have you been in Bali?
Ethan: Actually, we've been here nearly a year.
I wanted to go to school,
so I asked if we could stay –
I [ ] to go to university.
Mum and dad like it here in Bali,
they've got a [ ] and I go to an international school.
Perfect!
Ava: So do you like being at school again?
Ethan: Yes, I do, I've [ ] lots of new friends.
School work is fine –
In fact, I worked much [ ] when I was travelling.
Ruth's [ ] but she's going to come to my school next year.
Ava: Thanks, Ethan. Good luck. Bye.
Ethan: Bye.
