Should uniforms be banned in schools? Discuss.

Teenagers are expressive. They are at an age where they want to be perceived as cool. Many may find the school uniform a hindrance. However, on the other hand, the emergence of uniforms were noble. It was created to unify students across all classes. It is argued nowadays on whether teenagers, who go to school, should be wearing a uniform. Is it more of a hindrance to self expression or does it unify all students despite the backgrounds they come from?

One of the strongest arguments in favour of uniforms is the cost. Uniforms are created at an affordable price. Though some private school uniforms may cost considerably more but would one rather pay for a full uniform or buy new clothes every week or two? Most public school uniforms do not cost an incredible amount, and only have to be renewed after a year or two Uniforms unify students despite the social classes they come from. If there are no uniforms, students can assess the wealth of one another from the clothes and shoes they wear. This can lead to discrimination. Uniforms have solved this problem. The uniform has become an identity that unifies all students despite social classes.

Despite the above benefits, uniforms are a hindrance to self expression. Self expression is important to teenagers. The need to stand out is important to them. Uniforms are not designed to make one attractive. Especially at this age, teenagers feel insecure due to the multiple changes their bodies go through. Also, it is at this point they wish to explore and find a new identity. They are easily influenced by the media. Uniforms do not help teenagers stand out from the crowd. Also, it can hide a student's personality, their style, and who they really are, and this really dampens one's creativity.

In conclusion, I believe students should still wear uniforms to schools. However, teachers need to allow them to modify it so they can still express their creativity. Students should be allowed to personalize uniforms to their tastes.
