

Modal Verbs

Can is a modal verb used to express ability and possibility. However, can't is a modal verb used to express inability and impossibility. Read the examples below:

Can	Can't
Ability • I can swim well. • She can play computer games. • He can speak Spanish fluently.	Inability • I can't swim underwater well. • She can't play tennis. • He can't speak English fluently.
Possibility • You can learn to play basketball at a summer camp. • We can go to the cinema in July.	Impossibility • You can't learn to play hockey at a summer camp. • Due to the covid-19 pandemic, we can't go to the cinema now.

Could is a modal verb used to express ability and possibility. However, couldn't is a modal verb used to express inability and impossibility. These are the past forms of can and can't respectively. Read the examples below:

Could	Couldn't
Ability (past) • I could swim well when I was a child. • She could play computer games last summer, but now she must study for the school exams.	Inability (past) • I couldn't swim well last summer, but now I can. • He couldn't speak English fluently some years ago.
Possibility (past) • You could have learned to sky at Sierra Nevada last winter. • We could go to the cinema in January.	Impossibility (past) • We couldn't buy the tickets for the concert, they had sold out. • Due to the covid-19 pandemic, we couldn't go to the cinema in April.

Should is a modal verb used to give advice (aconsejar). Shouldn't is also used to give advice. Read the examples below:

Should	Shouldn't
Advice • I can swim well. • She can play computer games. • He can speak Spanish fluently.	Advice • I can't swim underwater well. • She can't play tennis. • He can't speak English fluently.

Must is a modal verb used to express obligation, while mustn't is a modal verb used to express prohibition. Read the examples below:

Must	Mustn't
Obligation • You must do your homework. • People must do their best at work.	Prohibition • People mustn't smoke at the cinema. • "You mustn't come home late", the mother said to her son.

Notice: can, could, should and must are modal verbs, so you don't add "-s" to the third person singular when using them (She plays the piano ≠ She can play the piano).

Notice: should is sometimes used as a polite version of must, so their meaning is similar (You mustn't smoke cigarettes ≠ You shouldn't smoke cigarettes).
