Last April, I went to the Al Marmoum Camel Festival in Dubai and watched the camel racing. Camel racing has always been very popular in Dubai. In the past, people rode the camels, but today people put drones on camels' backs and use them to control where the camels go. The racing was very interesting and exciting to watch. While the camels were running round the stadium, people drove after them in cars and used their remote controls to make the camels turn left or right. The camels raced around the stadium at 65 kilometres an hour!
