The Veyron emerged from this spirit of the Bugatti tradition. It is a work of art, if you like. Though a high-performance car, it features well-balanced proportions and filigree⁽¹⁾ design that elegantly hides much of the technology underneath.⁽²⁾ With more than 1,000 horsepower, the motor is an absolute benchmark⁽³⁾ in modern engine technology. The seven-gear, double-clutch gearbox⁽⁴⁾ capable of transmitting the 1,200 Nm torque without irregularities in the traction force is also totally innovative. Of course it requires an all-wheel drive⁽⁵⁾ to handle this load of power.

The best way of motivating a car developer is to give him the opportunity of driving the car himself, so he can experience every step of improvement. What helps the car to accelerate is its enormous torque of 1250 Nm, attained⁽⁶⁾ at no more than 2,000 revs per minute. The seven-gear, double-clutch gearbox enables it to reach the speed of 100 km/h in less than 2.5 seconds, 200 km/h in just over 7 seconds, and 300 km/h in 16.5 seconds. This spoiler is driven out at speeds over 200 km/h, also serving as an air brake. The Veyron did a great job of reviving the Bugatti brand. Every Veyron that we sell helps us spread the spirit of Bugatti in the world. However, what a car can and should convey⁽⁷⁾ is the joy of driving, the experience. This has a lot to do with weight, but also with the enthusiasm engineers had to summon up⁽⁸⁾ in order to create a car that's in every way formidable.⁽⁹⁾ Elegance paired⁽¹⁰⁾ with power and extreme technology is what makes the Veyron a true Bugatti. Thus the unique and special spirit that goes into making a Bugatti is just as strong today as it's ever been and will remain so for years to come.
