As usual, school finished at 2 o'clock yesterday. Tom and his friends didn't go home right away. They stayed outside the school for half an hour and they talked about their weekend plans.

When Tom went home, he saw that the front door was open. "Mum came home earlier and she forgot the door open," he thought. However, as he was about to enter the house, he heard two strange men talking. "There are thieves in the house," he said to himself. He was afraid. He ran to his grandparents' home, which was very near his house. His grandma opened the door and Tom told her the whole story. His grandma believed him and she called the police. When the police arrived at Tom's house, two men were putting his mum's piano on the back of a truck. "Stop over there," one policeman said to the men.

For a moment, the two men looked worried, but then they smiled. "We aren't stealing the piano, officer," one of them said. "My name is John and this is George. Mrs. Jones called us to take the piano for repairs. You can ask her. She's in the house."

At this moment, Tom's mother came out of the house and she explained everything to the police.

"I'm sorry," Tom said to the two men. "Don't worry. You did the right thing," John and George said to Tom.

Dear Nick,

How are you? I'm glad you had a nice time in the summer. I'm writing to tell you about my summer holiday, too.

My friend, Mark, invited me to spend a week with him in Brighton. Brighton is a beautiful town near the sea. We went to the beach every morning. We swam and played beach volley. There was an ice cream shop near the beach so on the way back home, we had ice cream. We had lunch at Mark's house every day. His mum is an excellent cook.

In the afternoons, we did different kinds of things. Brighton has a lot of small streets with shops. The shop I liked most was a music shop. There I bought a guitar at a very good price. Another interesting thing we did one afternoon was to visit the Toy Museum. There were 10,000 toys in the museum! It was amazing! And of course, we visited Drusillas Park, which is about 12 miles away from Brighton. There is a small zoo in Drussilas Park where there are hundreds of wild animals. There is also a playground for kids, restaurants, coffee shops and gift shops.

I had a lot of fun with Mark in Brighton. I'd like to spend my next summer holiday there, again because there are a lot of things I didn't get the chance to do.

Talk soon,

Peter
