Peers are people who are part of the samegroup, so the term "peer pressure" means the influence that peers can have onother. Although peer pressure does not necessarily have to be negative, the term "pressure" implies that the processpeople to do things that may be resistant to, or might not otherwise choose to do. So usually the term "peer pressure" is used when people are talking aboutthat are not considered socially acceptable or desirable such as smoking. The term "peer pressure" is not usually used to describe socially desirable behaviours, such as exercising or..... But, is Peer Pressure Always Bad?

In reality, peer pressure can be a positive or negative influence that one peer, or group of peers, has on another person. Peer pressure could influence a young person to becomein sports. This involvement could be positive, leading to exposure tolifestyles and role models, and eventually leading the young person to become a positive role model himself/ herself. However, that same peer pressure couldthe same young person to over-identify with sports, putting exercise and competitionall else. If taken to an extreme, he/ she may develop exercise addiction, causing him/ her toschoolwork and social activities, and ultimately, use exercise and competition in sports as his/ her main outlet for coping with the stresses of life. This can also lead to numerous health.....
