Complete the sentences with correct words

It seems like every day we find another _____ to feel guilty about what we buy. Maybe it's food that we know isn't good for us, or _____ which are made by poorly paid workers, or products which are damaging the _____. Manufacturers know we feel this way, and the latest trend is for so-called 'guilt-free brands' – brands which _____ to be better for us, for _____ and for the planet – so that we can buy them and not feel guilty. Sounds great, but is it as good as it _____? With us today we have Gosia Szlachta and Jem Norris, both _____ of the same environmental group but with very different views on the idea of guilt-free _____. So, Jem, what do you think about the idea?

J Well, as far as I'm concerned, anything which makes people think more about what they're _____ is a good idea. Take the Fairphone, for example. Until that was produced, most people didn't even realize how bad _____ were for electronics workers in many parts of the world. Now there's a lot more awareness ...

G There's a lot more _____, but don't you think it would be better if people understood that there is no need at all to keep buying new _____? There seems to be an idea that you have to have a new phone every two years. I'm convinced that if people really _____ how much damage this causes, to workers and to the planet, they wouldn't do this. I think people should feel guilty. _____ guilt-free brands just gives people an excuse not to think about these issues, and just keep buying more and more stuff ...

J Well, _____ to the people who make Fairphone, their phones will last longer and be easier to repair. If you ask me, we have to give people the option of buying something which is better for the planet, not just say they shouldn't buy something at all.
