Russia cracks down on journalists and social media

O'Donnell:
Well, a new ..... has fallen in Russia, and this time, it's an ..... iron curtain. ..... most Russians don't know ..... in Ukraine. The Kremlin today ..... Facebook and Twitter, and there are no ..... media outlets left.

CBS 's Roxana Saberi reports from London.

Reporter: No to war was the final message broadcast by TV Rain, one of Russia's ..... media outlets. The staff then walk out, leaving behind a parting shot-- the Ballet "swan lake," a nod to what Soviet Russia played in times of turmoil. A ..... played out at Russia's oldest liberal radio Station, echo of Moscow, which says it's been forced to close.

Radio journalist :"We just can say welcome to The U.S.S.R".

Reporter: These acts of defiance come as Russia's Parliament ..... effectively ..... the ..... of information ..... the Kremlin's narrative on the War against Ukraine. Simply calling it a ..... instead of a special military operation can ..... to up to 15 years behind bars. The Kremlin is trying to ..... discontent over the war. At least ....., and Russians are reeling from crushing western ..... . In Moscow, residents rushed to a local Ikea store just before the furniture giant joined other western brands pulling out of the country. This shopper says, "this is ..... I've seen anything like this. It feels like we're lined up ..... in war time." And tonight, many Russian ..... are fearing for their ..... . Some ..... the country this week. With today's ....., ... are now packing up and getting .....

LIVEWORKSHEETS

LIVEWORKSHEETS