

Stress in Adjective/Noun Combinations

When you speak, it's important to use words that describe what you are talking about. Words that describe nouns (people, places, or things) are called adjectives. When you use adjective/noun combinations, the noun normally receives greater stress.

EXAMPLES big dog good book pretty dress nice boy

By accidentally stressing the adjective, you might mistakenly say a compound noun with a completely different meaning. Your listeners will be confused!

EXAMPLES cheap skates (inexpensive skates) will sound like cheapskates
(stingy people)
yellow jacket (a yellow coat) will sound like yellowjacket
(a stinging insect)

EXERCISE C

 Listen and repeat the sentences. Be sure to stress only the boldfaced words or syllables.

Sentences with Adjective/ Noun Combinations

I like all blue birds.
We live in the white house.
I don't like dark rooms.
He sawed a black board.
I don't like the green house.

Sentences with Compound Nouns

I like bluejays and bluebirds.
The president lives in the White House.
Photographers work in darkrooms.
The teacher writes on the blackboard.
Plants grow in the greenhouse.

 LIVEWORKSHEETS