READING COMPREHENSION: A BIRTHDAY PARTY

Last Friday there was a birthday party for my friend Madison. It was at 56 Wall street, New York. It was a sunny day and it was a great party. There were balloons and a huge chocolate cake. There were also fancy presents and cold drinks but there wasn't any cool music. There were many children there. Madison's parents, John and Cathy, were there too. There was a dancing competition and Madison's aunt Lily was the winner.
