

Free Trade vocabulary review: Complete each sentence using a word from the table below

Free trade	Hazardous	collapse	Child labour	naive deforestation	manufacturing	Win-win situation	Exploiting	Profoundly
Income inequality	scenario

- _____ is the ability to sell or buy products between countries without restrictions.
- Some claim that free trade benefits everyone and so is a _____ for all involved.
- It would be extremely foolhardy and _____ for governments to claim that everyone benefits from free trade.
- In the best case _____ everyone would benefit from Free Trade but that is simply not true.
- To reduce their costs, many companies in developing countries like Australia and the USA have moved their _____ overseas where salaries are lower.
- The writer overgeneralises when he claims that free trade has contributed to the _____ of the middle class in some developed countries.
- The _____ chemicals of factories were contributing to water and air pollution in many developing countries.
- Some multinational companies are _____ low skilled workers in developing countries by paying them a very low salary.
- The writer argues that free trade has had _____ destructive results for both developing and developed countries alike.
- The writer claims that Free Trade has increased _____ in many developed countries with the rich getting richer while the working class get poorer.
- Mass _____ in some developing countries has destroyed the forests and land that provides food and water supplies for the local communities.
- Some developing countries use forced labour or _____ in their factories where some workers are as young as 12 years of age.