Before formal education begins in primary school, children go to kindergarten. This is <sup>1</sup> optional/compulsory. Pupils usually <sup>2</sup> attend/maintain four years of primary, five years of secondary and three years of high school. Practically all schools are <sup>3</sup> co-educational/single-sex. Most schools are <sup>4</sup> public/private institutions run by the state – but there are some run by various foundations. All schools follow the national <sup>5</sup> timetable/curriculum. Students can study in general schools, or schools which focus on training for certain jobs and professions. At the end of their secondary studies, students must take a school-leaving exam, which also serves as the <sup>6</sup> mock/entrance exam for higher education. Students don't need to pay <sup>7</sup> tuition/admission fees for most universities, but they have to pay for some private institutions.
