It was night time. Milly was in her son's bedroom. His name is Jack. He is sixteen months old. She put him to bed at eight o'clock, but three hours later, he woke up and he started crying. Milly was already asleep, but she woke up straight away. She went into Jack's room and lifted him out of his bed. She walked around the room, gently rocking Jack. She sang a lullaby. Soon, he stopped crying and he settled down. She walked to the window and she looked out. It was the dark of night. The full moon was high in the sky. It was shining brightly. It was a clear night, no clouds. There were many stars and she saw a shooting star. She thought how lucky she was. She had her precious child safe in her arms. Her husband was sleeping peacefully in the next room. She knew that some mothers, under the same moon, were not so lucky. Bad things were happening all over the world. She gave Jack a kiss, an extra hug and put him back to bed.
