The eating habits in the Indian culture are largely (a) _____ on religion and tradition. A high-vegetable diet often with no beef and generally no (b) _____ comes from the Hindu religion. Habits of how and when food is consumed are also based on social traditions, and most families form their particular habits around a combination of cultural and family traditions.

Most dishes feature meat or vegetables (c) _____ with sauce and rice. Many Indians are vegetarian, so eating habits are often based on a diet that excludes all meat. When meat is incorporated in dishes, it is most commonly in the form of chicken, beef or lamb, and sometimes seafood, such as (d) _____. The majority of the Indian population is Hindu, so beef and pork are often excluded from Indian dishes due to religious requirements.

2. Read the passage and answer the questions below. (2ms)

Barbara Morgan’s dream was to travel into space. One day, her wish came true. She was one of the seven astronauts on the Space Shuttle Endeavour, which took off into space from NASA’s Kennedy Space Station in Florida.

Morgan taught at an elementary school in Boise from 1975-1998, with some time off for astronaut training. In 1985, she and Christa McAuliffe were chosen from 11,000 applicants to become part of the teacher-in-space program. They trained together for the mission. But then, tragedy happened. On January 28, 1986, the Space Shuttle Challenger exploded. After the Challenger accident, Morgan continued to teach. In 1998, she was asked again to become an astronaut. She accepted the offer and in the end her dream came true.
