

Why do Australians celebrate Christmas in July?

1) Put the phrases in the right place

Where does the concept come from?

Do people give presents during Christmas in July?

So why is there also a Christmas celebration during July?

2) Complete the blanks with the correct option

Ever heard of a celebration called Christmas in July? It happens in Australia during the middle of winter and it is in addition to the real Christmas in December. Confused? We explain what it's all about.

Is Christmas celebrated twice a year in Australia?

No, the real Christmas only happens once a year - on 25 December. In Australia it's a national public holiday and people _____ the day with friends and family, coming together to swap presents and _____ good food and drink.

It can be hot and humid during December, which is in the middle of summer in Australia. So Christmas _____ differently here compared to the northern hemisphere, where it's the middle of winter.

In Australia it's more likely we _____ beer on the beach, rather than mulled wine and markets, which is what happens in Europe. The food eaten here will also be lighter, with seafood a popular choice.

1.

Australia has British and European heritage, so there's a strong attachment to the tradition of celebrating Christmas in cold weather. That's why there's 'Christmas in July', which is also known as Yulefest or Yuletide in Australia.

July is generally the _____ month of winter, so celebrations emulate the atmosphere of the northern hemisphere winter. So that _____ hearty food like roasts, and warm drinks in front of fireplaces and bonfires.

Christmas in July does not replace the real Christmas in December, and is enjoyed as an extra celebration. It's not an official holiday and it's not celebrated by everyone, but its popularity _____.

2.

The phrase 'Christmas in July' is also found in other countries in the southern hemisphere like New Zealand and South Africa.

There was a Hollywood movie called Christmas in July (1940). However, the film is not believed to be the origin of the phrase's use in Australia, which _____ to date from around the late 1970s to the early 1980s.

No one seems to know for sure where the concept comes from, but it's rumoured to have originated with a small group of people creating the occasion in the Blue Mountains west of Sydney.

3.

The celebration is mainly used as an excuse for people to have private gatherings with family and friends, but it's also used as a reason for public events and ticketed functions.

Christmas in July is increasingly being used for commercial purposes, like a display of trees in Sydney's Pitt Street mall. Aside from the festive decor, hot coffee and warm popcorn _____ for free to encourage people to go shopping.