Reading He was very lucky!

Read the text, then look at the sentences and say who's speaking.

Nat Spink will never forget the day when he went to hospital with a 90 cm arrow in his stomach. He's still got the photo that was in the local newspaper. In the photo he was lying on a hospital bed and he was feeling a bit scared, but he gave the photographer a big smile!

Nat used to play with his friends in the park. They never used to think that their games were dangerous and Nat's mother didn't use to worry about him. Then, one day, when Nat was 12, his best friend made a bow and arrow. The arrow was a piece of bamboo with a long nail at the end. They went into the park with some other boys. Nat's friend tried the bow and arrow. The other boys were standing several metres away from him and they all moved, except Nat. The arrow hit him in the stomach. Nat said later that he saw the arrow coming towards him. He knew it was going to hit him, but he didn't have time to move.

Someone called an ambulance and Nat was taken to hospital.

Doctors cut the bamboo, then they took out the nail. 'Fortunately, the injury wasn't too serious,' they said, 'but he was very, very lucky.'

- 1 'We don't take arrows out of people every day!' _____

- 2 'I never used to worry about Nat when he was playing outside.' _____

- 3 'I wasn't trying to hit Nat. It was an accident.' _____

- 4 'We moved when we saw the arrow coming.' _____
