7th April – Old furniture ... new!

I'm very excited today because I've finished cleaning and fixing my new bedroom furniture. Yes, as I've said in my other blog entries, it's not really 'new' furniture. I found it in the street! But with some love and care, it looks great! My dad helped me with some broken pieces. They were in really bad condition. But everything looks as good as new now and the headboard is beautiful. I love its simple design, like furniture from the countryside. You can see part of the headboard in my photo. I can't wait to chill out in my bedroom with all this cool 'old' furniture!

13th March – My helping hands

Today we started to build a new home. It's for a family that has a lot of money problems. They lost their home several years ago and life is very hard. I'm really amazed at how they stay together and keep strong. There are four family members, and the house we're building will have two bedrooms. I'm looking forward to finishing it. It will take us a couple of months to get everything ready, and then they can move in. I'm really glad I joined this organisation, Homes with Heart. I love building things, and working as a volunteer makes me love it even more!

7th June – Putting the pieces back together

This week my family and I are travelling to Kefalonia, a Greek island on the west side of the country. We're going to visit my grandmother. She lives on the island, and she needs to find a new place to live for a while. There was an earthquake on the island, and it damaged her home. We're going to help her move to a new place. My grandmother can't live in her old house like it is. It's sad because my dad grew up in that house. It will take a very long time and a lot of money to fix it. Luckily, my grandmother has got some money saved up. But still, she'll have to live in a flat for a least a year. But on the bright side, I'm glad she'll have a nice place to live.
