DATING Q & A

WITH STUDENTS AROUND THE WORLD

The men

In Ho, 22, South Korea
Niels, 20, Holland

Do teenagers date in your country?

In Ho: They usually don't, not in high school. Students are studying a lot and preparing for the college entrance exam. Most people go on a first date later, usually in college.

Erin: People here start dating at 14 or 15. But these couples usually break up after graduation.

Valentina: My parents are strict,¹ so I didn't date in high school. But some people do, at age 16 or so.²

Niels: Teenagers date in Holland, but it's very relaxed. Guys and girls often hang out together in groups. This is true even in college and later. It's a good way to meet people.

In Ho: I agree. I often go out with my classmates—both men and women. We go to a club or something like that.

The women

Valentina, 21, Colombia
Erin, 19, New Zealand

Imagine you like someone. Do you invite the person to go on a date with you?

In Ho: Sure. I text the person. If she agrees, we go to a movie or something.

Valentina: I never ask the guy. He should invite me.

Erin: But sometimes a guy is shy.³

Niels: Or you like him, but he doesn't know.

Erin: Exactly. So it's OK for a girl to invite the guy, I think.

Niels: I agree.

¹ A strict person controls another person, usually with many rules.

² Or so means about or around.

³ A shy person is quiet and uncomfortable with others.
