

Set 2. Choose the appropriate word to complete the sentence:

1. Your name was removed from the registers, every record of everything you had ever done was wiped out, your one-time existence was _____ and then forgotten. 2. There was no idea that he had ever had, or could have, that O'Brien had not long ago known, examined, and _____. 3. She always _____ him when he said anything of this kind. 4. At the age of three Comrade Ogilvy had _____ all toys except a drum, a submachine gun, and a model helicopter.	rejected refused contradicted denied
1. Heavy physical work, the _____ of home and children, petty quarrels with neighbours, films, football, beer, and above all, gambling, filled up the horizon of their minds. 2. Winston had never made the smallest _____ to verify this guess: indeed, there was no way of doing so. 3. His sole _____ was to find out what they wanted him to confess, and then confess it quickly, before the bullying started anew. 4. Often he would lie from one meal to the next almost without stirring, sometimes asleep, sometimes waking into vague reveries in which it was too much _____ to open his eyes.	effort care trouble concern
1. Nevertheless, the few luxuries that he does enjoy his large, well-appointed flat, the better texture of his clothes, the better _____ of his food and drink and tobacco, his two or three servants, his private motor-car or helicopter—set him in a different world from a member of the Outer Party, and the members of the Outer Party have a similar advantage in comparison with the submerged masses whom we call 'the proles'. 2. And it was to be foreseen that with the passage of time the distinguishing _____	quality form characteristics aspect of Newspeak would become more and more pronounced—its words growing fewer and fewer, their meanings more and more rigid, and the chance of putting them to improper uses always diminishing. 3. In the past the need for a hierarchical _____ of society had been the doctrine specifically of the High. 4. The mystical reverence that he felt for her was somehow mixed up with the _____ of the pale, cloudless sky, stretching away behind the chimney-pots into interminable distance.

1. But just at this moment he flung himself across the floor of the cell and _____ one of the iron legs that supported the bench. 2. For a moment he was _____ by a kind of hysteria. 3. The inhabitants of these areas, reduced more or less openly to the status of slaves, pass continually from conqueror to conqueror, and are expended like so much coal or oil in the race to turn out more armaments, to _____ more territory, to control more labour power, to turn out more armaments... and so on indefinitely. 4. It was perfectly possible that the patrols would _____ him on the way out: for that matter they might be waiting outside the door at this moment.	seized catch grabbed capture
1. Supposing that the mechanics of the process have been rightly described, what is the _____ for this huge, accurately planned effort to freeze history at a particular moment of time? 2. Procreation will be an annual formality like the _____ of a ration card. 3. He seemed to have lost the power of intellectual effort, now that the _____ of pain had been removed.	stimulus reaction motive renewal

4. To dissemble your feelings, to control your face, to do what everyone else was doing, was an instinctive _____.
1. On the following day he very nearly _____ in speaking to her. 2. Presently they had _____ the edge of the little wood. 3. It was because of the atmosphere of hockey-fields and cold baths and community hikes and general clean-mindedness which she _____ to carry about with her. 4. So far as it could be _____, a Newspeak word of this class was simply a staccato sound expressing ONE clearly understood concept.	achieved managed succeeded reached
1. 'To commit acts of sabotage which may _____ the death of hundreds of innocent people?' 2. What pure power _____ you will understand presently. 3. Part of the _____ for this was that in the past no government had the power to keep its citizens under constant surveillance. 4. He had the feeling that O'Brien was his protector, that the pain was something that came from outside, from some other _____, and that it was O'Brien who would save him from it.	cause reason means source