Read the text about night shift work and then answer the questions that follow.

Night Shift Work

Many people have jobs that are not very interesting, but a lot of people have to work at night, and this is very difficult. When everybody else is getting ready to go out, they have to go to work, and this puts a lot of psychological stress on them. It is also not very healthy because the human body is designed to be active in the day and to rest in the dark. If this cycle is reversed it can have a bad effect on a person's health. So, why do people do the night shift?

Nowadays many businesses have to offer a 24-hour service, like hotels, delivery companies, some supermarkets are open all night and all day, call centres and hospitals. It is true that some people only need a few hours of sleep at night but the majority need eight hours. Humans are most active in the middle of the day, and the time when they are least able to concentrate and be efficient is between 2 am and 4 am.

This is the worst time to drive or to do anything that needs concentration. The body finds it very difficult to adapt to the opposite cycle. Things are not likely to get better in the future because more and more businesses are working 24-hour cycles to keep in step with our 24-hour society.

Keep on Running

I recently started running after years of doing only a little exercise. I definitely feel fitter; I've lost some weight and can now run distances that would have been impossible for me 20 years ago. (1) .

To begin with, there's nothing like sharing a passion for something with others. When I train with my club, we occasionally talk about other topics while running around the streets. (2) . We'll share news of our goals, our latest injuries, and our upcoming runs, knowing that we have a friendly, interested, and understanding ear. I've yet to come across a bad runner!

(3) . This has been a lot of fun for me. It could be helping in the organisation of a run in the local park or helping those who are new to running in getting started. In comparison to some people, I do very little, but I do intend to include more of this in the future. It also greatly aids my relaxation. I lead a very busy life, and it is surprisingly difficult for me to go ten minutes without having thoughts racing through my head. Despite this, I can often go for long stretches of a run thinking about nothing but the pavement in front of me and how my body is feeling. (4) .

I like having something to aim for, and running gives me that opportunity, whether it's something long term, like my marathon ambitions, or something more immediate, like going for a personal best time on a shorter run. But it's important to remember not to overdo it, and one of my goals is to always enjoy running!

(5) . This is especially true if you've achieved something you didn't believe was possible. That's been the case with my personal best times and completing some of the longer runs in the past.

- A. Then there's the sense of accomplishment.
- B. Running allows me to disconnect from everything that is bothering me.
- C. It's also beneficial to your health
- D. But I don't believe these are the reasons I run
- E. But most of the time, we talk about running.
- F. Finding the time to run can be difficult.
- G. Running also provides many opportunities to volunteer.
- H. I hurt myself earlier this year.
