

Before	Statements	After
	1. Turnover among middle school teachers is higher in America than in Finland.
	2. The number of certified teachers in America is decreasing, whereas the number of students is increasing.
	3. On average, American teachers work an hour and a half longer than teacher from other OECD countries.
	4. American students shower lower results than OECD average.
	5. On average, teachers earn less money than other college graduates in most OECD countries.
	6. The USA spends more money per student than any other country in the developed world.
	7. Half of American teachers think that the society values their work.	