Listen and choose the correct word.

NATALIE: Welcome to this week's program, "Who Has It Harder?", where we'll take a look at the roles and _____ of men, women, boys, and girls in families.

First, thanks to everyone who responded to our survey. Rob?

ROB: Thanks, Natalie. Later on in the program, we'll be taking your phone calls and talking to Dr. Harris, a family psychologist, who will answer your questions.

And now for the results of the survey. Natalie?

NATALIE: Well, in response to the first question – "Who is the messiest in the house?" – the answer was _____!

Eighty-five percent of you said that your sons or brothers don't _____ much around the house.

They don't _____ their things, don't _____ their clothes, and leave their clothes lying around.

ROB: Interesting. And what about the second question, Natalie? "Who does most of the work in the kitchen?"

NATALIE: Well, eighty-four percent of you answered "_____." Many of you also explained that the boys and men usually _____ the garbage.

The girls and women tend to cook, do the dishes, and _____.

Both boys and girls _____ the groceries _____.

ROB: And what about general chores inside and outside the house, Natalie?

NATALIE: Well, according to our results, women usually _____ inside the house, while men usually clean up _____. Both men and women contribute here, it seems.

ROB: That's good that everyone helps out. So what else do the men do?

NATALIE: Ah, well, that's our next question, "Who worries most about expenses?"

Our survey results indicate that men worry most about household _____. One young man wrote to us saying,

"My dad always tells my sister and me to _____ the lights if we're not in a room, not to spend so much time on the computer, to _____ the TV, well, everything really.

I guess he's really worried about money." So, Rob, it appears dads worry the most about _____.

ROB: Yes, very interesting. Well, now I'd like to introduce Dr. Harris. . . .
